OUR MASSAGE TYPES

EXFOLIATION (KESE) & FOAM MASSAGE:

The kese is a massage glove with a rough surface, mainly made of natural silk threads and horsehair (at RAI Spa Foresta, the kese is produced according to our personal order). It provides an essential experience for gently removing dead epidermal cells from the surface of the skin.

The skin renews itself and begins to "breathe." It helps cleanse the skin of dead cells (rashes, acne, redness, peeling) and leaves it feeling refreshed. It also has beneficial effects on joints and muscles. This procedure helps your skin look beautiful and can even support a more even tan.

The foam (soap) massage is a combination of special massage techniques performed by a professional therapist using aromatic soap foam. This procedure is carried out only in the Turkish bath (hammam), featuring a warm marble surface, a unique microclimate, and an atmosphere of complete peace and silence. Along with the soap foam and bathing rituals, the massage techniques contribute to effective skin cleansing, help in combating aesthetic imperfections, and—most importantly—leave you with a sweet sense of happiness and mental satisfaction.

THAI MASSAGE:

A massage performed using traditional Far Eastern techniques, identified with Thailand, carried out on a floor mattress with manipulations consisting of nearly 60 stretching, elongation, and pressure movements. The aim is to increase body flexibility, open the body's assumed energy channels, and restore balance.

RAI FORESTA SPA CENTER

THAI REFLEXOLOGY:

Based on acupuncture principles, this therapy aims to stimulate the related organs by activating reflex points on the hands and feet and triggering electrochemical messages via neurons. In practice, the feet are most commonly preferred due to the high number of nerve endings. It affects blood circulation and all organs.

MEDICAL MASSAGE:

An effective therapy method used for centuries in the treatment of various conditions. It is divided into many different types depending on the application techniques and how it affects the body. The widespread use of medical massage as an independent or complex therapeutic tool is due to a wide range of indications and a small list of contraindications. Therapeutic massage is also an excellent support during the rehabilitation period after injury or illness. It promotes rapid restoration of all vital functions and systems and significantly improves the patient's well-being.

BALINESE MASSAGE:

At our center, Balinese massage is performed by professional massage therapists and combines Swedish massage, acupressure, and massage techniques. Thanks to its relaxation methods, you will feel fully rested and relaxed after the session.

HOT STONE MASSAGE:

Developed by massage therapist Mary Nelson, hot stone massage is a type of massage in which iron-rich basalt stones are heated and placed on key points of the body, and massage is then performed using the stones. As the basalt stones release heat gradually, you will feel completely relieved of tension and deeply relaxed after the massage.

DEEP TISSUE MASSAGE:

A massage performed by applying deep, slow-pressure techniques to muscles, fascia, and connective tissues located deeper in the body, used for conditions such as chronic pain, restricted mobility, postural problems, chronic muscle tension, and fibromyalgia.

SHIATSU MASSAGE:

Also based on acupuncture principles, this massage is performed by stimulating acupressure points with various pressure techniques, either for relaxation or to benefit from its therapeutic effects.

LYMPH DRAINAGE MASSAGE:

A gentle body massage that helps remove excess fluid from the body and speeds up metabolism. As a result, it is possible to reduce edema, support weight loss, and decrease the appearance of cellulite.

ANTI-STRESS MASSAGE:

After a one-hour anti-stress session performed with aromatic oils, you will feel complete relaxation and serenity. The manipulations are slow and deep.

SULTAN MASSAGE:

A traditional massage performed simultaneously by two therapists. Since different areas are massaged at the same time, it helps eliminate fatigue—and after this massage, you will feel like a real Sultan.

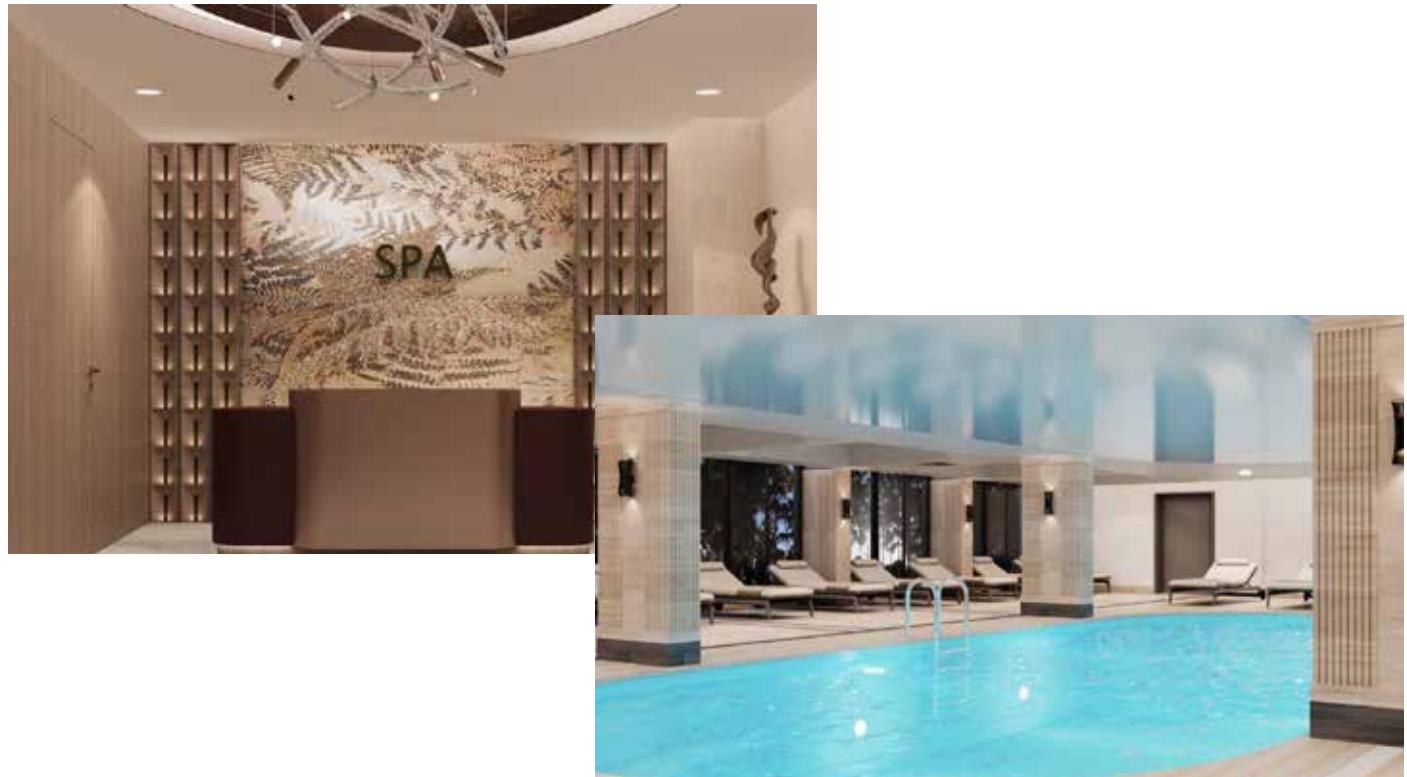

RAI FORESTA SPA CENTER

AYURVEDA:

Ayurveda is one of the treatment methods used in traditional Indian medicine. It involves heating sesame oil (purified and free from water molecules) to body temperature and applying it to the whole body or a specific area using a special technique (massage). The Ayurveda (full-body) massage performed by our expert staff in our Spa Center will offer you a unique relaxation experience.
